As with the close of 2023, Q1 2024 was a strong period for risky assets. The financial markets have been tainted by expectations for a soft landing in the economy and equities have in general performed strongly. Economic data was unexpectedly on the upside and affected more risky assets such as narrower credit spreads and rising oil prices.

The journey for the fixed income markets was not as positive and returns were held back by persistent inflation and the belief of fewer rate cuts, which resulted in higher interest rates during the quarter. The demand for corporate bonds was high with good levels of activity in new issues and oversubscribed books. There were occasionally some concerns during the quarter about commercial real estate and its impact on the balance sheets of US banks, although these concerns have waned for the time being.

The credit spreads for real estate companies in the Nordics continued to narrow and companies such as Sato, Castellum and Sagax contributed positively to returns in the fund. The fund was negatively affected by the significant rate movements in the middle of the quarter as the fund had a slight overweight position in duration. However, the selection of credits in the fund contributed positively. We were active in several new issues, which included BBVA, Tennet, Telefonica and United Utilities.
