Portfolio manager comments — Q2 2024

Fund performance was negative in Q2 due to a weaker EUR during the period. Focus has been on the global inflation rate and the measures taken by the central banks. The US inflation has been more persistent than expected and has led the market to adjust its expectations for rate cuts from the US central bank, the Fed. Instead of the cuts that were expected at the beginning of the year, the market is now questioning whether there will be any cuts during the year.

This has led to a rise in interest rates and slightly weaker stock markets, while geopolitical risks are expected to remain significant going forward. Despite these challenges, the risk sentiment in the credit market has been positive and issuing activity has been high.

The fund has held a slightly longer duration and has also been positioned for steeper yield curves, which have recently performed well. The strongest contributor to fund performance is the exposure to the Finnish bank Aktia, with other Nordic banks also posting strong performance. In addition, the fund's exposure to Nordic issuers that are issuing certificates also contributed positively.

The weakest performance was seen in the duration positioning, although we are retaining our view that it remains beneficial to continue to be slightly long in duration when considering the macroeconomic factors and communication from the central banks.
