Fund performance was positive in Q1 2024 and the fund rose just over 2% in SEK, while the SEK weakened slightly relative to the Brazilian real. The central bank in Brazil continued to cut interest rates at the outset of the year, which contributed to increased optimism among companies.

We expect further rate cuts as a result of a mild inflation outlook and high real interest rates. This, together with a more optimistic overall macro outlook, is expected to provide support to the equity market.

Brazilian consumers have been put under pressure in recent years but we are now seeing some glimpses of improvement ahead, such as a lower rate of inflation, higher salaries and income, as well as lower interest rates which should support a consumer rebound. The lower interest rates should also contribute to supporting the company profits that we have seen in company reports.

The strongest contributor to returns during the quarter was the harbor operator Santos Brasil. The limited capacity in the Santos harbor allows the company to continue to raise prices and operate at full capacity. The company is indicating increased growth through higher capacity and is the only company in the harbor that has the capability of expanding. This has translated into results that remain strong and has led to upward revisions and a higher share price. Totvs, which delivers business systems, had the most negative impact during the period. The company reported weaker than expected results, where certain restructurings in particular had a negative impact on results and weighed on the share price.

The fund has a thematic investment process with Demographics, Productivity, Environment and Lifestyles as the main themes.
